Vision
A leading College that promotes excellence in teaching, training, research and consultancy.

Mission
To provide quality teaching, learning, research and consultancy in humanities and social sciences by creating, preserving, transmitting and utilising knowledge.

Core values
The College shall be guided by the following core values:

a. Freedom of thought and expression
b. Innovativeness and creativity
c. Good corporate governance
d. Team spirit and teamwork
e. Professionalism
f. Quality customer service
g. Responsible corporate citizenship and strong social responsibility
h. Respect for and conservation of the environment

Quality Objectives
The college's objectives are as follows:

i. To manage the College efficiently and effectively
ii. To offer quality academic programmes
iii. To contribute to knowledge development and innovations
iv. To enhance the competitiveness of the College
PRINCIPAL’S MESSAGE

The vision of the College of Humanities and Social Sciences reads: "To be a leading unit within the University that promotes academic achievement and excellence in teaching, training, research and consultancy in the Humanities and Social Sciences". Pursuant to this vision, the College constantly monitors developments in its environment and in the world at large. This provides it with societal trends and changes both at home and abroad. The awareness gained enables the College to respond to trends and changes by introducing new academic programmes or modifying existing ones to meet current demand.

The College is always striving to improve the contents of its courses as well as the methods of delivery. In a continuing exercise, eighteen computer laboratories have been created across the college during the last two years. Connectivity of lecturers' offices to the Internet is also going on. There are measures, which will not only give students access to electronic library services but also make delivery of lectures easier and more effective. The College has several collaboration links with other institutions across the globe and it is our intention to actively seek to collaborate with more institutions in the future.

The welfare of students is a matter of priority in the College. Consequently, living conditions in the Halls of Residence along with the general environment around the halls are being constantly addressed. The College is also making efforts to improve sports and games facilities to ensure that every student is given an opportunity to participate in games and sporting activities.

The academic units within the college offer a broad range and variety of academic programmes which are in line with the expectations of the stakeholders and the mission and vision of the university. The programmes offered include: Business Studies, Journalism and communication, Arts, Economics, Anthropology, Gender & African Studies, Law, Environmental Law & Policy Studies, Diplomacy & International Studies, Population Studies & Research, and Development Studies.

All the programmes correspond to international standards. They are evaluated by UNESCO, external examiners, internal assessments. For example, during the last evaluation by UNESCO in 2008, School of Journalism and Mass Communication was ranked amongst the top 12 training institutions in Africa offering communication and media training and the only potential Centre of Excellence in Kenya. The university has a clear educational policy, expressing evidently the principles of choosing the programmes and settling its profile.

INTRODUCTION

The College of Humanities and Social Sciences (CHSS) is one of the six Colleges of the University of Nairobi. Like the other five, it was established following the recommendations of the 1985 Presidential Visitation Committee headed by Geoffrey Kariithi. The College comprises four faculties, three institutes and one school.

CHSS is the largest College of the University with about fifty percent of the total students enrolment and staff. The College operates in several locations namely, Main, Parklands, Lower Kabete, Mombasa and Kisumu campuses and National Museum. The faculties, institutes and schools offer a wide array of academic and research programmes. The mandate of the College is to coordinate the implementation of University policies and programmes in the humanities and social sciences.

KEY ACTIVITIES BY UNITS OF THE COLLEGE

The college has 10 units comprising 1 faculty, 4 schools, 4 institutes and 1 centre. The units implement high quality internationally benchmarked academic programmes, research and consultancies, dissemination of research output through publications, conferences and other fora. The college has also continued to enhance its visibility through international linkages and collaborations. Highlights of some of these activities are captured as per unit below.

FACULTY OF ARTS

INTRODUCTION

The Faculty of Arts with an enrolment of 8,329 students and 202 full-time and 42 part-time academic staff is one of the largest faculties in the University. The Faculty constitutes the following nine Departments: Linguistics and Languages, Communication Skills, Literature, Geography and Environmental Studies, History and Archaeological Studies, Psychology, Sociology and Social Work, Political Science and Public Administration, and Philosophy and Religious Studies plus one sub – department of French. The Faculty further hosts two centres that are the Confucius Institute and the Centre for Human Rights and Peace. In addition, the Faculty collaborates internally, with the University of Nairobi (UON) Library, and externally, with the Utalii College and the Kenya Institute of Administration, in offering some of its specialized academic programmes.

ACADEMIC PROGRAMMES

The Faculty offers a large number of competitive, demand-driven programmes ranging from diploma, bachelor, post-graduate diploma, master and Ph.D. The diploma programmes include those in: Social work and social development, criminology and social order, cultural tourism, natural resource management, philosophy and psychology. Apart from the mainstream bachelor programmes leading to major or minor in various disciplines, there are three professional programmes: B.A. in Psychology counseling, B.A. in Social Work and B.A. in Criminology and Criminal Justice. At the master level programmes, demand-driven and specialized degree courses are offered to meet the needs of students who are already working. Such specialized master-level degrees in various disciplines include: Master in Public Administration, Master in various clusters in Sociology (such as Rural Sociology and Community Development, Counseling, Disaster Management etc), Master in Human Rights and Peace, Master in Translation, Master in German studies, Master in Kiswahili studies, Master in Armed Conflict and Peace Studies, Master in Biodiversity and Natural Resource Management and Master in Library Studies. The Ph.D. degree programmes are offered by nearly all the disciplines/departments.

SCHOOL OF BUSINESS

INTRODUCTION

The School of Business, formerly Faculty of Commerce, was established in 1956/57 academic year in the then Royal Technical College to offer special academic and professional examinations in the accountancy and secretarial practice. Following its inception in 1964, the first bachelor of commerce class was admitted with 35 students in Main Campus. The School moved to its current location at Lower Kabete Campus in the premises formerly occupied by the Kenya Institute of Administration in 1988.

The School provides leadership in the pursuit of business management programmes, providing knowledge and applications through customer-driven teaching, training, research, consultancy and community services. Currently the School offers seven (7) programmes namely: Bachelor of Commerce (B.Com), Master of Business Administration (MBA), Master of Science in Finance (MSc. Finance), the newly introduced Master of Science programmes in Human Resource Management, Marketing, Entrepreneurship & Innovations Management, and the Doctor of Philosophy (PhD) in Business Administration. The School continues to review its curriculum in line with the emerging market and individual needs.

The School of Business is currently operating in four distinct locations namely: the Lower Kabete Campus which serves as the headquarters of the School’s operations; the Main Campus location comprising of Main Campus, Ambank House and Chiromo Campus that mainly serves the Module II evening programmes; the Mombasa Campus established in 2004 and the Kisumu Campus established in 2008.
The School currently has a population of over thirteen thousand (13,074) students spread in the seven (7) programmes and across the various teaching locations. The School has a rich pool of qualified teaching staff with adequate training, teaching and research experience. This ensures the production of all-round graduates who have over the years competed very well in the job market.

The programmes are offered in several modes i.e. fulltime, part-time and distance learning modes. The part-time and distance learning programmes are designed to accommodate the special needs of those in full time employment and other related engagements.

Undergraduate - 9500 students
Postgraduate - 3574 students

The School currently has about fifty (50) foreign students. Thirty-three (33) of these are from the Republic of Liberia who are under Liberian Government scholarships.

ACADEMIC programmes

The school offers the following programmes:

Bachelor of Commerce
Master of Business Administration
Master of Science in Finance

SCHOOL OF JOURNALISM

INTRODUCTION
The history of professional training for journalists in East Africa dates back to the early 1960s when the intention was to Africanize the mass media. Between 1963 and 1968, the International Press Institute ran a series of six-month training programmes in Nairobi for journalists from English-speaking African countries. To continue these programmes, the Ministry of Education approached UNESCO in 1968 to assist in setting up a more intensive training programme integrated into the University of Nairobi. Thus, the School was opened in the University as a UNESCO regional project financed largely by funds from Denmark, Norway, and Austria to cater for students from Eastern and Central Africa.

Until 1979, the School offered a two-year undergraduate programme leading to a Diploma in Journalism. This earlier effort was mostly aimed at advanced-level secondary school leavers and journalists with little or no prior professional training. The courses gave practical training as well as relevant theoretical background in subjects such as mass communication, international studies, economics and government. From 1980 to-date the School offers a program leading to Postgraduate Diploma in Mass Communication, a Masters Degree in Communication Studies and from January, 2006, a Bachelor of Arts in Journalism and Media Studies. The latter program has four specializations namely, Development Communication, Public Relations, Print Journalism and Broadcast Journalism. Its recent addition to the courses bouquet is the Bachelor of Arts in Broadcast Production, which was a logical progression for its long standing collaboration with the Kenya Institute of Mass Communication (KIMC), the oldest training institution for journalism and the technical fields of communication in Kenya. It true to say that the School has produced most of the top journalists, editors and media managers in the Kenyan media, as well as top communication professionals in public relations, international organizations, and the academia. Most of the lecturers currently teaching at various universities in Kenya were trained at the School, as are most the public relations practitioners, and publishers.

The School is synonymous with the history of excellence in journalism in Kenya and the East African Region. The School is able to sustain this excellence by tapping into the extensive faculty resources of the largest College at the University of Nairobi, the College of Humanities and Social Sciences, which holds the record of having the most professors of any college in Kenya. SOJMC students are able to interact with professors from other disciplines offered at the University including sociology, anthropology, development studies, English, linguistics, political science, geography, computer science, and medicine. Currently, the school has more than 1600 students at the undergraduate, masters and PhD levels. The first two graduates of the PhD program graduated in 2011 and were quickly taken up by local universities. The School was identified as one of the twelve Centres of Excellence in Communication and Media training in Africa, and the only one in Kenya

The school offers the following programmes:
Bachelor of Arts in Journalism & Media Studies
Bachelor of Arts in Broadcast Production
Master of Arts in Communication Studies
Doctor of Philosophy (PhD) in Communication and Information Studies (CIS)

SCHOOL OF LAW

INTRODUCTION
The Faculty of Law was established in 1970 and is one of the original faculties of the University of Nairobi. It is currently referred to as the School of Law. The main task of the School is to run a national training Programme for the legal profession, leading to the degree of Bachelor of Laws (LL.B). The Faculty also runs Master of Laws (LL.M) and PhD Programmes for students wishing to specialize in specific branches of law.

Although law studies at the University Level are, by tradition, of theoretical character, pedagogical efforts have been made to encourage active participation in class and to introduce mock trials and moot court competitions locally and internationally. The School also runs a Clinical Programme under which students are attached to courts in order for them to appreciate the workings of the law and gain practical experience. The training at the School provides students with knowledge of the law required in professional practice, business, industry as well as service in local and central governments. Since its establishment, the School has maintained a distinctive character in contribution to the legal profession and the legal fraternity in Kenya and is the leading source of legal knowledge and skills in the country. Graduates of the School are serving as senior members of government, judges of superior courts, magistrates, senior legal officers in the State Law Office, public corporations, local authorities and private entities. Others are law instructors in many institutions.

This premier law School has evolved steadily from its earlier status as a department of the Faculty of Commerce in the 1960s to one of the largest law Schools in East and Central Africa. Today, the School has staff strength of 5 full professors, 9 Associate professors, 10 Senior Lecturers, 41 Lecturers, 1 Assistant Lecturers and a team of administrative and support staff. The student population stands at slightly over 2,259. The School of Law has three Campuses: Parklands, Nairobi Law Campus, Mombasa Law Campus and Kisumu Law Campus. The School also has three Departments: Commercial Law, Private Law and Public Law.

INSTITUTE FOR DEVELOPMENT STUDIES

INTRODUCTION

The Institute for Development Studies (IDS) is a premier development research institute in the Eastern and Southern Africa region. Established in 1965, the Institute has been carrying out research on development in the region and has increasingly influenced policy thinking and policy making in the region and Africa in general. In addition, IDS has collaboration and linkages with many research institutions and universities across the world. IDS has engaged in a rich variety of research projects relevant to Kenya’s development agenda. It uses seminar series, workshops, and publications to disseminate and get feedback on research results. The publications include policy briefs, working papers, discussion papers and finalized research papers.

IDS has a faculty status which enables it to offer postgraduate studies in development studies. The Institute builds capacity for the analysis of development issues through the Master of Arts in Development Studies and PhD programmes. The Institute also encourages intellectual exchange between researchers and scholars on one hand and institutions on the other by undertaking collaborative research and hosting research associates.

INSTITUTE OF DIPLOMACY AND INTERNATIONAL STUDIES

INTRODUCTION

The Institute of Diplomacy and International Studies (IDIS) is a regional training institution based at the University of Nairobi. Its core service areas include undergraduate and postgraduate training, research, publication and conferences, a modern language laboratory, a library and documentation service and hostel facilities for students and visiting scholars and researchers. IDIS caters for the needs of African countries and international organizations, and maintains close links with similar institutions all over the world. The Institute offers Diploma, BA, Post Graduate Diploma, MA and PhD programmes in International and Strategic Studies. It has also set up Latin American and South East Asia regional study areas.

The Institute maintains close links with the resident diplomatic community. The latter participate in the Institute’s programmes either as guest lecturers, seminar resource persons/participants or advisers in practical aspects of diplomacy such as diplomatic negotiations. The location of the Institute allows it to benefit from the large diplomatic presence and international organizations and media personnel in Nairobi.

The Institute has well developed links with institutions that have related programmes. It has well established links with the National Defence College of Kenya and also with the Defence Staff College in Nairobi. It runs an MA programme in international studies at the National Defence College and also a Diploma programme in international studies at the same institution. The Institute has enjoyed and continues to develop its historical links with the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Kenya. It has also developed links with the United Nations University of Peace.

The Institute’s academic staff include leading academicians in their areas of research. It attracts high caliber students from all over the continent and currently has about three hundred students enrolled in its diverse programmes. IDIS provides its students with a rich multi-cultural experience and it counts among its alumni ambassadors, diplomats and international and regional civil servants. We at the Institute like to think of IDIS as the “small Institute with an attitude.” This reaffirms our belief in constantly maintaining the high quality and relevance of our programmes. It also enables us to provide a friendly environment that is sensitive to the needs of our students.

The Institute is constantly seeking to expand its network of collaborators. In 2006 we signed a Memorandum of Understanding with the UN University of Peace and another one with the Spanish Government in 2010. The Institute also maintains an active collaboration with the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Kenya, the Ministry of East African Co-operation of Kenya, the National Defence College, the Defence Staff College, the East African Legislature and Non-Governmental institutions such as the Heinrich Boll Foundation and the International Development and Research Centre (IDRC). I invite you to experience the unique world of diplomacy and international studies as experienced at the Institute of Diplomacy and International Studies.

The Institute trains manpower as one way of attaining the Government’s strategic objectives towards Vision 2030. This is done by making an assessment of the requirements of various stakeholders. All training is done in line with the Government policy on higher education.

ACADEMIC PROGRAMMES

The institute runs the following programmes:
- Diploma in International Studies
- Diploma in Strategic Studies
- Bachelor of Arts in International Studies
- Postgraduate Diploma in International Relations
- Postgraduate Diploma in Strategic Studies
- Master of Arts in Diplomacy

CENTRE FOR ADVANCED STUDIES IN ENVIRONMENTAL LAW AND POLICY (CAESLAP)

INTRODUCTION
On 20th September 2007 the Council of the University of Nairobi approved Statute provisions establishing The Centre for Advanced Studies in Environmental Law and Policy (CASELAP) as a Faculty-level unit of the University. This completed a process initiated by the Faculty (now School) of Law and the Institute for Development Studies, both within the College of Humanities and Social Sciences, towards a postgraduate centre of excellence for capacity building in environmental governance, comprising environmental law and policy. The action of the Council constituted a formal establishment of CASELAP and thus authorized it to prepare its academic programmes for approval by Senate.

CASELAP has developed focused programmes aimed at providing sustained and advanced level capacity building in environmental governance at national and regional levels. This will fill an urgent gap in environmental law and policy that is key to ensuring sustainable development. The principal components of environmental governance which constitute the three academic divisions of CASELAP are Environmental Policy, Environmental Law and Environmental Diplomacy. Each of the Masters programmes will run for a period of four semesters, while the Doctorate programme in Environmental Policy will run for six semesters.

ACADEMIC programmes
The following programmes are offered by the centre:
MA in Environmental Policy
MA in Environmental Law
PhD in Environmental Policy

INFRASTRUCTURE

FACILITIES AND INFRASTRUCTURE

Facilities and resources are in line with the formulated goals and aims and with each designed program. Facilities are also connected to the teaching/learning strategy. Computer-aided instruction can only be realised with enough computers for the students. The main learning resources consist of books, brochures, magazines, journals, posters, information sheets, internet and intranet, CD-ROMs, maps, aerial photographs, satellite imagery and others. The college has student computer laboratories for each programme, language laboratories, internet connectivity to students through both wireless and LAN connectivity.

The college expands its teaching and learning facilities as need arises. Currently the teaching space is not enough but the college acquires additional teaching spaces in the central Business District and other outlying campuses of the University of Nairobi.

The college has a total of 23 computer laboratories distributed across its establishment to facilitate teaching and learning activities. Both the staff and the students use the computer laboratories to access e-learning materials and internet information. Currently the teaching aids and tools budget is catered for but situation may change as the student numbers also change.

Teaching and learning rooms for the college are summarized in the tables below.

ACCOMMODATION/SUPPORT FACILITIES

Accommodation is coordinated in the entire University by the Students Welfare Authority (SWA) which exists to support the academic objectives of the University of Nairobi by providing a comprehensive, competent and responsible catering and accommodation system to all duly registered students of UON with preference to the undergraduates in session. This enables students to pursue their academic objectives in the most enjoyable manner possible.

SWA is organized into eleven Strategic Management Units (SMUs) with Parklands being one of the SMUs. SWA halls capacity take in up-to ten thousand (10,000) students at a time largely government sponsored students. The college of Humanities and Social Sciences is covered under this university wide arrangement.

Library and Information Services

The academic units within the college of Humanities and Social Sciences are served by the corporate university of Nairobi library services policy. This comprises of the main Jomo Kenyatta Memorial Library, College libraries as well as Institute libraries scattered all over Nairobi. The UON Library system is uniform, rules are the same and a union catalogue of all publications is available at JKML.

An online Public access catalogue has been installed at JKML and the same is being installed in all the branch libraries.

An inter-branch library loan system is in operation and University members may become full members of any library on being introduced by their base librarian. Undergraduates may not ordinarily use Institute libraries.

Services offered by UON libraries

i. Staff assistance and guidance.

ii. Training of readers through orientation and the Information Skills Course.

iii. Lending of books for home use.

iv. Facilities for private study of own books, reference books etc; study carrels for postgraduates and academic staff.
